January - 2026

- I think when you think of death as being part of the life cycle and recognize that death is an inevitability for our species because the world has to be renewed with each death, then the hope becomes when it is renewed it will be renewed by people on whom I have had some influence for good.
- 'Death with dignity' is our society's expression of the universal yearning to achieve a graceful triumph over the stark and often repugnant finality of life's last sputterings. But the fact is, death is not a confrontation. It is simply an event in the sequence of nature's ongoing rhythms.
- To become comfortable with uncertainty is one of the primary goals in the training of a physician.

Sherwin Nulund

- In the stillness of the quiet, if we listen, we can hear the whisper of the heart giving strength to weakness, courage to fear, hope to despair.
- Do not be silent; there is no limit to the power that may be released through you.

Howard Thurman

- Our heart wanders lost in the dark woods. Our dream wrestles in the castle of doubt. But there's music in us. Hope is pushed down but the angel flies up again taking us with her.
- WAKING AT NIGHT - The blue river is grey at morning and evening. There is twilight at dawn and dusk. I lie in the dark wondering if this quiet in me now is a beginning or an end.
- We think the fire eats the wood. We are wrong. The wood reaches out to the flame. The fire licks at what the wood harbors, and the wood gives itself away to that intimacy, the manner in which we and the world meet each new day.
- I believe that Icarus was not failing as he fell, but just coming to the end of his triumph.
- I'm vain enough to think that I've made a successful life. I've had everything I've ever wanted. You can't beat that.
- When I was walking in the mountains with the Japanese man and began to hear the water, he said, 'What is the sound of the waterfall?' 'Silence,' he finally told me.

Jack Gilbert

THURSDAY

I like to think of a new year being possible at any moment, as every moment is a kind of doorway.

Joy Harjo

FRIDAY

02

You can measure your worth by your dedication to your path, not by your success and failures.

Elizabeth Gilbert

Something unknown is doing we don't know what.

Sir Arthur Eddington's explanation of the universe.

One of the questions posed by Courtney Martin for an end-of-the-year reflection:

What did I learn about grief this year?

Grief has no timetable for its appearance.

It's not a series of steps of observance

But a process that reminds me of a loss

And the eventual price that it costs

When I deeply loved a person who is gone,

To whom earlier in life I was drawn

Because of her values and inner beauty she possessed

And she lives on in ways that can't be adequately expressed

But felt deeply as I continue on

To live my life . . . It's a new dawn. (ELP)

Those endless closets and halls in the brain where the unknown hides; that open for a moment and then close again. That is where the poems come from.

Elizabeth Gilbert, Big Magic

- All I know for certain is that this is how I want to spend my life – collaborating to the best of my ability with forces of inspiration that I can neither see, nor prove, nor command, nor understand. It's a strange line of work, admittedly. I cannot think of a better way to pass my days. p. 78
- I can only be in charge of producing the work itself. That's a hard enough job. I refuse to take on additional jobs, such as trying to police what anybody thinks about my work once it leaves my desk. p. 123
- The essential ingredients for creativity remain exactly the same for everybody: courage, enchantment, permission, persistence, trust – and those elements are universally accessible. p. 158
- Do what you love to do, and do it with both seriousness and lightness. At least then you will know that you have tried and that – whatever the outcome – you have traveled a noble path. p. 184

- The marvelous thing about a good question is that it shapes our identity as much by the asking as it does by the answering.
- Questions that have no right to go away are those that have to do with the person we are about to become; they are conversations that will happen with or without our conscious participation.
- The ultimate lesson is that there is no immunity, no matter our age or the size of our retirement account, from going through constant cycles of integration and disintegration in which we are humbled and hopefully set to rights with the world again.

David Whyte

What you produce is not necessarily always sacred, I realized, just because you think it's sacred. What is sacred is the time that you spend working on the project, and what that time does to expand your imagination, and what that expanded imagination does to transform your life. p. 232

- When I lecture, under almost all circumstances, I write a new lecture for the occasion. It helps me think. It helps me make demands of myself that I would not otherwise make.
- The great truth that is too often forgotten is that it is in the nature of people to do good to one another.
- Memory can make a thing seem to have been much more than it was.
- It all means more than I can tell you. So you must not judge what I know by what I find words for.

Marilynne Robinson

I completed reading this book and found that Gilbert validated my own orientation of creativity. She is a very refreshing author.

Letting the facts speak for themselves is an immoral principle when we all know that facts and figures can be selected to prove anything.

Peter Kavanagh

The real problem is what to do with the problem-solvers after the problems are solved.

Gay Talese

We are linked by blood, and blood is memory without language.

Joyce Carol Oates

- Success is self-defined. You can choose what you think success is, and you can always change your mind.
- Happiness is not something you achieve. It's not something you do or some place you get to. Happiness is something you inhabit.
- It's easy to want the benefits of something; it's hard to want the cost.
- The first and perhaps most important thing to realize about being happier in life is to stop trying to be so happy in life. Mark Manson

When elders with dementia are met for the first time without our knowledge of their past life of achievements and struggles, all are viewed on a level playing field: valued for being in our presence for the essential “beings” who they are. There is a clean slate for our interactions with their current life. We focus on the now. This is mindfulness in one of its truest forms. ELP (This reflection is influenced by a posting by Courtney Martin when visiting her dad in a community where elders with dementia live.)

Engaging each moment without reservation cuts through the illusion that things could be other than they are. Rami Shapiro

There's something about using your brain creatively that really elevates being alive. Darlene Costello, NYTimes article, A Man Who Shunned Cheap Sentiment Left a Gift for Others: Life, December 25, 2025.

- Everyone has a story, and I have learned that, at the core of it, most of our stories are more similar than not.
- I believe we learn what we are meant to learn, and some of us are simply meant to learn things the hard way.
- I spent many late nights during medical school using my brain to think about the brain and then using my mind to ponder the irony of it. How exactly do we separate and distinguish the mind from the brain?
- “Manifestation” should focus on bettering oneself and serving others, which gives meaning and purpose.
- Manifestation is about cultivating a fierce belief in possibility.
- Where I had once made a list of my material goals, I now made a new list of the ten things that open the heart: Compassion, Dignity, Equanimity, Forgiveness, Gratitude, Humility, Integrity, Justice, Kindness, and Love (CDEFGHIJKL). James Doty

Sometimes the saddest passages of our lives are the most instructive. As hard as it is to watch a loved one drift away to another world where you can't follow, as much as the grief can feel overwhelming, dementia has important lessons to teach us all. One is not to take for granted that you understand what your loved one is feeling or absorbing. ... Another lesson is that we are all perfectly capable of stepping away from the sternness of our opinions and viewpoints, choosing instead to be calm, receptive, and gracious. ... I've told many people that, after the journey of dementia with a loved one, you won't be the same. How you change is a choice. You'll either be more open and more gracious or harder and more closed off.

Patti Davis

- You can define a net two ways, depending on your point of view. Normally, you would say it is a meshed instrument designed to catch fish. But you could, with no great injury to logic, reverse the image and define the net, as a jocular lexicographer once did: he called it a collection of holes tied together with string.*
- Grief reconfigures time, its length, its texture, its function: one day means no more than the next, so why have they been picked out and given separate names?*
- In life, every ending is just the start of another story.*

- Intuition is the key to everything, in painting, filmmaking, business – everything. I think you could have an intellectual ability, but if you can sharpen your intuition, which they say is emotion and intellect joining together, then a knowingness occurs.*
- I think that ideas exist outside of ourselves. I think somewhere, we're all connected off in some very abstract land. But somewhere between there and here ideas exist.*
- It makes me uncomfortable to talk about meanings and things. It's better not to know so much about what things mean. Because the meaning, it's a very personal thing, and the meaning for me is different than the meaning for somebody else.*
- I love Bob Dylan. Who doesn't? He tapped into some kind of vein and it keeps on keeping on. There's nobody like him. He's unique, and just ... way out cool.*
